WIND BAND Rococo Red 2022

What's in a name?

In the 18th century the Rococo period represented a time when the style of architecture, visual and decorative arts was light and elegant. Its musical counterpart was the gallant style with an emphasis on pleasantness and prettiness. In similar fashion the Wind Band Rococo Red is a pleasant and charming red wine with loads of fruit, but easy drinking enough to enjoy every day of the week.

Winemaking

Grapes were handpicked and cold-soaked for 24 hours. Fermentation was initiated with selected yeast strains and kept under 26°C. Malolactic fermentation was completed in a stainless steel tank, 80% of the wine matured for 12 months in inert 300-litre French oak barrels.

Tasting notes

A medium-bodied red wine packed with juicy ripe plums, black cherries on the nose, spice, and freshly cracked black pepper. There is subtle, well-balanced toasty oak on the palate, supported by refined tannins and a lingering finish.
